

The Moody Depot

403 West Avenue B

In 1881, the Moody Depot was built in Moody, Texas. They proudly painted "Moody" onto their depot. The first train that came through Moody found everyone from far and near, dressed in his best "bin and tucker" gathered at the depot to see the train come through. The depot was enlarged in 1910 to accommodate more passengers and more freight moving in and out of the city. In 1975, the depot was loaded onto a moving truck and moved to Temple. The word "Moody" still remains painted on the building to this day.
